

RESEARCH ACHIEVEMENTS

1. As a lecturer at the Chair of International Relations and Contemporary History [Faculty of History and International Relations, University of Białystok], I was concerned on international relations, especially: post-soviet nations, U.S. and European Union relationships. I tried to further the knowledge from these mentioned scientific areas and also collectively, with my Institute colleagues, achieve and develop ideas/research projects.
2. From November 2019 to September 30, 2020 I was Dean's Coordinator for Students' International Exchanging [non-degree Programme] at the Faculty of History and International Relations University of Białystok. One of my functions was to keep on free students international exchanging from the partnership nations, as example China.
3. As part of the Foreign Affairs Institute on doctoral studies in the Politics and Journalism Department at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, I dealt with the U.S. foreign policy, which is directly related to the subject of my doctoral dissertation. Academic dissertation is related to my research interests, which I am developing since the beginning of studies.
4. During doctoral studies I established contacts with the main scientists representing international society all over the world, like for example Joseph Nye or Parag Khanna.
5. Since the beginning of PhD studies I taught students international political relations. I encouraged them to deepen their knowledge from international security and global politics, shared with them own passion. In my teaching work so far, I have conducted classes from the variety subjects related with international relations and history – also in English language.
6. My scientific work: Three-level chessboard. Segmentation of „Great Politics” in thought of Joseph Nye got in 2011 the Dean's Prize at WNPiD UAM.
7. I finished postgraduate studies Foreign and International Service on Law and Administration Department at Adam Mickiewicz University. My thesis dissertation included the perception of American power.
8. Since the beginning of doctoral studies at the Adam Mickiewicz University, I actively participated in the Board of Doctoral Faculty of Politics and Journalism, looking after the interests of this community. Previously I represented the Board as President and Vice-President of Faculty Council WNS UAM (since October 2009, the Institute of Politics and Journalism became the Department).

9. From 2016 to 2019, I was a juror (also vicechair of the juror's Council) of the District Court in Zielona Góra; 2nd Penalty Department.
